Additionally, the High Commissioner stressed the remarkable progress that Rwanda has made in infrastructure development, economic growth, and social welfare since its liberation in 1994. Furthermore, she warmly invited the participants to explore the abundance of tourism opportunities in Rwanda.

EMBASSY OF D.R. CONGO IN INDIA

63rd Independence Day Celebration

Friday, 30th June 2023

India's Foreign Trade Policy (FTP) 2023 aims to unlock global trade opportunities and increase India's export value to $2 trillion by 2030. The policy focuses on four key pillars: Incentive to Remission, Export Promotion through Collaboration, Ease of Doing Business, and Emerging Areas.

Under the Incentive to Remission pillar, the FTP 2023 introduces streamlined duty exemption schemes and an Amnesty Scheme for defaulted export obligations. These measures reduce transaction costs, improve transparency, and provide relief to exporters burdened by pending cases.

The Export Promotion through Collaboration pillar emphasizes a partnership approach with stakeholders, including states, districts, and Indian missions. State Export Promotion Committees and District Export Promotion Committees will be established to identify export-worthy products and promote exports at the grassroots level. The policy also designates certain towns as Towns of Export Excellence, offering priority access to export promotion funds and benefits as Common Service Providers.

The Ease of Doing Business pillar focuses on process re-engineering, automation, and e-commerce exports facilitation. The policy simplifies processes, reduces fees, and establishes e-commerce hubs to support the growing sector. It also recognizes the importance of emerging areas such as SCOMET policy, Export Promotion of Capital Goods (EPCG) Scheme, and facilitation under the Advance Authorization Scheme.

The policy presents several advantages for other countries to trade with India. For the United States, India's large consumer market and emphasis on ease of doing business offer significant opportunities. China can benefit from trade diversification and collaboration in areas where both countries have expertise. The European Union can leverage India's emphasis on automation and ease of doing business to enhance trade relations. The Gulf Cooperation Council countries can tap into India's export promotion focus and collaborate in sectors complementary to their economies. African nations can explore trade opportunities based on historical ties, district-level export promotion, and India's expertise in sectors relevant to their development goals.

In conclusion, India's FTP 2023 provides a comprehensive framework to boost exports and unlock global trade opportunities. The policy's focus on collaboration, ease of doing business, and emerging areas presents advantages for both India and its trading partners. Engaging in trade with India can provide access to a vast market, skilled manpower, and facilitative policies, opening doors for mutually beneficial partnerships and collaborations.

Cultivate Millets, Save Soil, and Strengthen Sustainable Agriculture in India and Africa

India and Africa are making efforts to revive the cultivation of millets and promote their benefits for human consumption, soil health, and sustainable agriculture. Millets, such as Jowar, Raggi, Bajra, Ramdana, Cheena, and Saama, have been declared as nutria-cereals by the UN, and the International Year of Millets 2023 (IYOM) has been declared to regain their importance.

India has launched the Shree Anna movement to promote millets and benefit a large section of society. Millets have a rich history in Indian and African civilizations, dating back thousands of years.

They have been a part of everyday diets and cultural practices. The agricultural scientists support the goals of IYOM, which align with sustainable development goals, such as poverty eradication, zero hunger, good health, and well-being, and sustainable land use.

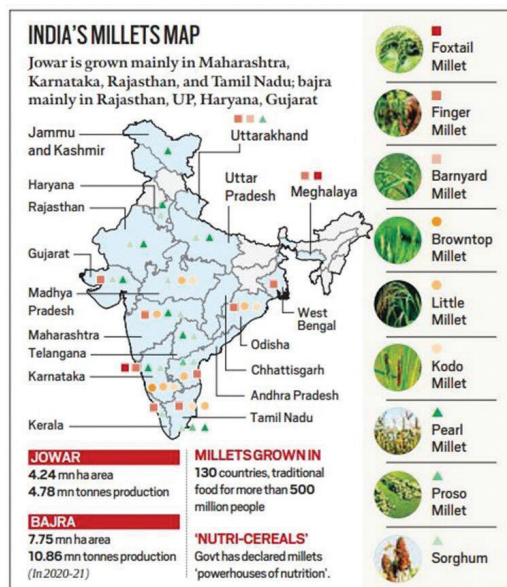

The perception of millets as inferior food compared to refined grains needs to be debunked. Millets provide essential nutrients, including protein, carbohydrates, fiber, potassium, iron, sodium, calcium, and vitamins. Global food markets and advertisements have created a myth of rich versus poor man meals, associating millets with poverty. This myth needs to be broken to promote sustainable agriculture and good health.

India's agro-industry has started producing a wide range of millet-based products, including flour, cereals, noodles, pasta, bread, and pizza. These products cater to modern consumers and emphasize the nutritional value of millets. Indian startups have played a significant role in introducing millet-based meals and snacks, making them more accessible and appealing.

In Africa, investment opportunities exist in enhancing agricultural production, mechanization, post-harvest loss reduction, green technology, veterinary services, financial services, and agro-processing industries. African countries like Burkina Faso, Benin, Nigeria, Ghana, and Uganda are major millet producers and offer opportunities for joint ventures and export-oriented production.

Infrastructure development, grain buffer stocks, and farmer participation are crucial for the success of millet cultivation and the agro-industry in India and Africa. Balancing green technology and farmer's involvement will create enthusiasm and eradicate poverty in the long term.

In conclusion, the cultivation of millets and the promotion of their benefits are essential for sustainable agriculture, soil health, and human well-being in India and Africa. The efforts to revive millet production and develop the agro-industry offer investment opportunities, employment generation, and a path towards food security and economic growth.

FURTHERING THE FRIENDLY RELATIONS BETWEEN VIETNAM AND INDIA

Despite the complicated changes in the region and worldwide, Vietnam-India relations have always maintained strong and developed well for decades. India has always been a reliable, close, and bonded friend of Vietnam. Based on past achievements, Vietnam-India ties will aim for even deeper cooperation in the future.

Vietnam and India have deeply rooted friendly relations that have been continuously preserved, nurtured, and developed by generations of both countries' leaders. The connection is associated with the introduction of Buddhism from India to Vietnam, with a history of 2,000 years. Back in the 1950s, President Ho Chi Minh and Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru laid the foundation for profound and enduring relations through their visits and interactions that surpassed diplomatic formalities. The two countries have always supported each other in the struggle against foreign aggression and the quest for national independence.

In the 21st century, along with the continued strong development of the scientific and technological revolution, and the powerful growth of commerce and investment, the complex fluctuations of the global situation pose significant challenges to the peace and security of each country as well as within the region and globally. However, Vietnam-India bonds continue to see many significant achievements and progress. Bilateral relations in general and trade relations in particular have been strongly promoted since both countries opened their markets and liberalized their economies. The two countries issued a Joint Statement on Comprehensive Cooperation in 2003 and started a strategic dialogue in 2009. They also established a strategic partnership in 2007, which was later elevated to a Comprehensive Strategic Partnership (CSP) in 2016. India is among the four countries with which Vietnam established a CSP.

India-Vietnam relations continued to strengthen as Indian Prime Minister N. Modi upgraded the “Look East Policy” to the “Act East Policy,” demonstrating the determination to enhance economic connections with the Southeast Asian market and promote India’s role and status in the region. In particular, Vietnam plays a crucial role in this policy, as stated by Indian Prime Minister N. Modi, on September 3, 2016, before the G20 Summit in Hangzhou, China, “Vietnam is a strong pillar in India’s Act East Policy” and “the bilateral relations between the two countries are based on mutual trust, understanding, and convergence of views on various regional and global issues.” The placement of Vietnam in a strategic position as the “center” and “bridge” in the “Act East” policy contributed to the furthering of Vietnam-India relations in general and economic relations in particular to develop to new heights.

This is demonstrated through the deepening relations between the two countries in seven main pillars: political relations, national defense and security partnership, economic partnership, development partnership, technological partnership, people-to-people exchanges, cultural exchanges, and multilateral and regional cooperation. These pillars supposedly built a solid foundation for the friendly relations between Vietnam and India, despite the complex changes in the world along with the emergence of new geopolitical and geo-economic factors.

On the basis of such a strong traditional friendship, the two peoples have continued to foster mutual bonds. The continuous development of people-to-people exchange activities has made a practical contribution as a bridge to enhancing mutual relations and understanding between the nations. On the occasion of the 30th anniversary of its establishment, the Vietnam Federation of UNESCO Associations, in collaboration with the Global Trade and Technology Council of India (GTTC India), will organize the “Vietnam - India Cultural and Economic Exchange Forum” from August 2 to August 5, 2023 in the capital city of New Delhi. The program is a bridge for trade and cultural exchange between businesses and people, contributing to enhancing friendship and economic development between Vietnam and India.

The event features various meaningful activities, such as the Vietnamese delegation visiting and working with the Vietnamese Embassy in India; honoring and acknowledging intellectuals, scientists, social activists, entrepreneurs, and exemplary organizations with a spirit of creativity, dynamism, innovation, and significant contributions to socio-economic development; participating in a Trade Fair in India; participating in a Buddhist ritual and receiving a Golden Lotus Pot (a lucky and blissful item) from the abbot of a Sri Lankan pagoda; and visiting famous constructions, architectures, and landmarks of India.

With the longevity of the relations, the challenges overcome, and the achievements attained, there are good grounds to believe that Vietnam-India relations are getting stronger and better.

NATIONAL DAYS OF JULY

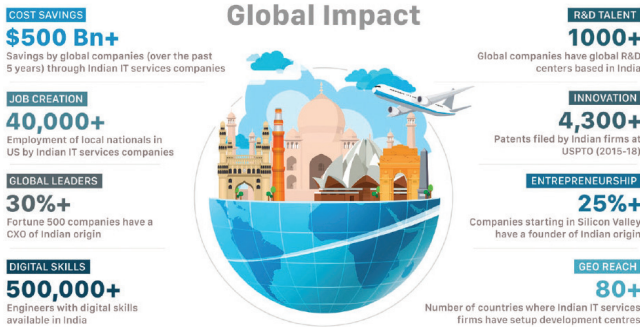

INDIA CELEBRATES 75 YEARS OF INDEPENDENCE

As India celebrates 75 years of independence, it has made significant strides as a global economy. Here are five achievements that showcase India's growth and impact on the world stage:

1. Growth of the IT and Tech Industry

India has emerged as a global IT hub, with a thriving tech industry. The country is home to numerous multinational tech companies and has a vast talent pool of skilled IT professionals. Indian IT firms have played a vital role in providing technology solutions to businesses worldwide, contributing to India's reputation as a leader in the digital economy.

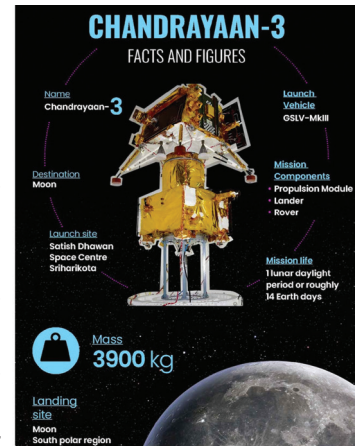

2. Pharmaceutical Industry

India's pharmaceutical industry has gained international recognition for its cost-effective generic drug manufacturing capabilities. It has become a global supplier of affordable medicines, benefiting millions of people worldwide. The industry's resilience and innovation during the COVID-19 pandemic further solidified its importance in the global healthcare ecosystem.

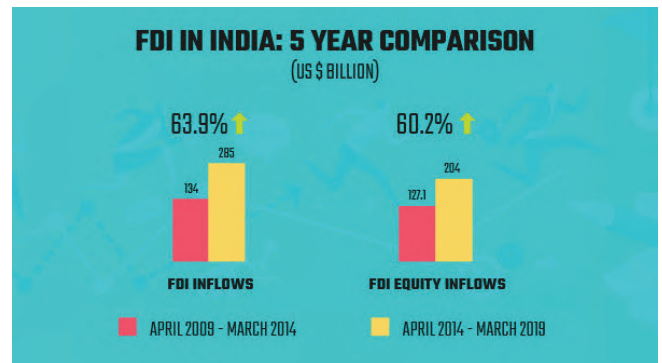

3. Space Exploration and Satellite Launches

India's space agency, ISRO, has achieved remarkable milestones in space exploration. The successful launch of missions like Chandrayaan and Mangalyaan, as well as its cost-efficient satellite launches for other countries, have elevated India's status as a space-faring nation with advanced technological capabilities.

4. Renewable Energy Leadership

India has taken significant strides in adopting renewable energy sources, particularly solar and wind power. The country has been actively investing in clean energy projects, reducing its carbon footprint, and playing a crucial role in combating climate change on the global stage.

5. Foreign Direct Investment (FDI) and Economic Reforms

India's economic liberalization in the 1990s paved the way for increased foreign direct investment (FDI) and trade opportunities. As a result, India has attracted substantial FDI inflows, strengthening its position as a preferred investment destination in various sectors, including manufacturing, services, and technology.

These achievements reflect India's growing economic prowess and its ability to influence global markets positively. As the nation continues to evolve, these milestones provide a solid foundation for a prosperous and promising future.
