MESSAGE FROM THE PRESIDENT

Dear Ambassadors, Diplomats, Members and Patrons of GTTCI,

I am thrilled to present to you the first edition of our newsletter. The Global Trade & Technology Council (India) - GTTCI is committed to promoting and strengthening trade ties between India and the rest of the world. Our primary goal is to help our members connect with foreign buyers and sellers, expand their business opportunities, and create a conducive environment for trade and commerce. Over the years, we have been actively working towards achieving our objectives. One of our primary efforts has been to connect exporters and importers directly with the commercial sections and heads of missions of various countries. By doing so, we provide a platform for our members to directly engage with the decision-makers, enabling them to access new markets and explore trade opportunities.

In addition to this, we have been actively engaged in matchmaking our members with foreign buyers and sellers. We believe this is an essential aspect of our work, and we continually strive to create more opportunities for our members to connect with potential partners. We have also been organizing diplomats' and buyers' interaction meetings, which have been immensely successful in creating a platform for our members to network with each other and foreign partners.

Our plan of opening city-wise branches/chapters and signing MOUs with chambers and associations aligns with our objective of expanding our reach and creating more opportunities for our members. By doing so, we aim to provide more localized support to our members and enhance their ability to do business.

Finally, we have been working towards organizing trade fairs and leading delegations abroad to explore new markets and create opportunities for our members to connect with potential partners.

In conclusion, I would like to extend my gratitude to all members of GTTCI for their continued support and contribution towards our mission. I am confident that with our collective efforts, we will continue to strengthen our ties with foreign partners and create more business opportunities for our members.

Best regards,

NOTE FROM THE EDITOR

I am excited and feeling honoured to connect with you all as the Director (Leadership Development), GTTCI while presenting this first edition of GTTC Insights. As we all know that the Global Trade & Technology Council (India) - GTTCI is committed to promote and strengthen the trade ties between India and the rest of the world.

I believe that you have more potential than you have unlocked so far. Through these messages, I will do my best to help you unlock that true potential. Often in my workshops people ask me about the true meaning of success. My usual answer is if you are able to maintain a reasonable balance among different walks of life that is the true meaning of success and your success becomes your happiness. On the other hand, if you are an under performer in comparison to your own true potential that is a sort of failure.

If you think that you are already successful, I congratulate you. Though, I invite your attention to minutely introspect, whether your success qualifies the above definition of success. Observe whether you are living a fulfilled life or you are still an underperformer in comparison to your true potential.

I believe that there are 4 pillars of exponential growth: 1. Having crystal-clear goals and strategy to achieve those goals; 2. Effective time utilisation habits; 3. Enriching communications; 4. The mindset to have congruence among all these three essentials.

You must be wondering how you can have control over these 4 pillars of exponential growth. The answer is simple! GOPTA NLP Framework, the ultimate growth model, which is fast becoming a buzzword for exponential growth and profitability. What is GOPTA? Is it the ultimate growth model? Wait for the complete framework in the next edition.

In the meantime, I express my gratitude to all the members of GTTC and wish you all good luck. Achieve whatever you want to achieve by utilising your time in goal-oriented manner.

Wish you good luck,

Talk by Padma Shri Dr. Randeep Guleria

17th January 2023 at
Medanta Mediclinic, New Delhi

GTTCI in collaboration with Medanta Clinic on 17th January 2023, organised a talk by Padma Shri awardee Dr. Randeep Guleria to make people aware of healthy lungs. The talk was attended by exclusive members of GTTCI and some of the best doctors in this country. We were fortunate to have His Excellency, Ambassador of Mongolia, Mr. Dambajavyn Ganbold, amidst us at this event.

Dr. Guleria was awarded Padma Shri for his tireless and selfless service towards the country during the outbreak of Covid 19. His presence outshone throughout the event. Dr. Shubhank, the Medanta Centre Head, and founder President of GTTCI facilitated Dr. Guleria with mementoes.

Dr. Guleria in his speech stated the need to focus on health. So, if even we don't have a disease, that doesn't mean that we are healthy. To be healthy, we must be good in terms of material. We may not realize it, but one may be having a lot of stress that needs to be addressed. We must be physically heavy in terms of our physical parameters. We see a lot of intensity happening. Over with that itself is what we call a metabolic state.

The audience was enthusiastic as we got an idea from Dr. Guleria about how it can lead to the sort of disorders which are part of the so-called metabolic syndrome. And then there's also the issue of being at peace with us in terms of spiritual health. So, when we look at health, we think it's important to look at it holistically. We need to develop a whole mechanism of holistic health which is more preventive rather than curative. The second issue is that in our country there has been a shift, paradigm shift in terms of the health pattern of disease.

Concluding, Dr. Guleria remembered how during his MBBS he had to stay on the AIIMS campus. So, everyone used to go by cycle or walking. So that is one way in which a lifetime history of physical activity is complex. The speech was remarkable which was followed by a set of questions and answers followed by an interactive session and high tea.

Explore Trade Opportunities between India & the Carribean Islands

24th January 2023 at The Chocolate Room, Delhi

GTTCI in collaboration with "The Chocolate Room" on 24th January 2023, organised an event for analysing and delving into the numerous commercial possibilities with the Caribbean group of Islands. The event was attended by ambassadors, diplomats, exclusive members of GTTCI and other business professionals who are looking to expand their business overseas, especially towards the Global West.

We were fortunate to have His Excellency, Ambassador of Trinidad and Tobago, Dr. Roger Gopaul, as a distinguished speaker for the event. We were also blessed by the presence of His Excellency, Ambassador of Suriname, along with His Excellency, Ambassador of Afghanistan amidst us. Dr. Gaurav Gupta, founder President of GTTCI along with Mr. Sanjay Kumar Agarwal, facilitated the excellencies with mementoes.

Ambassador Roger in his speech stated the need to talk about growth and expansion and any business since it is important to talk about differentiation, so When exporters or businesses want to attend and invest in the Caribbean market, it is most likely that they had indulged in the growth strategy. Hence, they are not looking at new products, but preferably at newer markets.

The guests were filled with ecstasy and enthusiasm as we got an idea from Ambassador Roger on where these countries are in terms of the export-import with India, and what Trinidad and Tobago can further offer to accelerate the trade relations. He also gave an overview about what are the various segments of labour, goods and services vacuum in Trinidad and Tobago, Surinam, Guyana, Jamaica, etcetera which can be of great advantage to Indian enterprises in terms of investment.

Panel Discussion on World Water Day 2023

21st March 2023 at The Lalit, New Delhi

Global Trade & Technology Council (India) along with Molitics on 21st March 2023 organised World Water Day at OKO, The Lalit New Delhi. The event was attended by exclusive members and guests of GTTCI. We were fortunate to have the Ambassador of Peru, H.E. MR. JAVIER MANUEL PAULINICH VELARDE as our chief guest. The event was blessed by the presence of Ms. Tahina Rasamoelina, Chargee d'Affaires a.i., Embassy of Madagascar, Mr. Alexander Rybas, Trade Commissioner, Embassy of Russian Federation in India, H.E. Dr. K.L. Ganju Consul General of the Union of Comoro, Maj Gen Dilawar Singh Director General NYKS, Dr. Gaurav Gupta, Founder President GTTCI, Mr. Chetan Sharma BCCI, Mr. and Dr. Rashmi Saluja from Religare group. The event was supported by collaborative efforts by Molitics.

Every year on March 22, World Water Day is commemorated to increase awareness of the water and sanitation issue and to motivate people to take action. Using the theme "Accelerating Change" for this year, a campaign has been started to persuade people to alter the way they use, consume, and manage water. It highlights the need for greater forceful action to be taken to address the global water crisis. and carry out international obligations about objectives for sustainable development related to water.

To maintain social, economic, and environmental well-being, water is essential. Fresh water has a multifaceted value. It covers a wide range of topics, such as diet, health, culture, and the preservation of the natural world. Any of these principles can be abandoned without endangering the well-being of our ecosystems. Just 2.5% of the water on Earth's surface, which makes up around 71% of its surface, is fresh and fit for human use.

There is a real problem with water scarcity that needs to be addressed. The amount of fresh water on the earth is nearly constant due to natural recycling, but population expansion and rising demand for clean water are escalating competition for this resource. Future generations may pay a price if we don't use water wisely now. Additionally, within a few decades, many regions of the world may have freshwater shortages.

Thus, GTTCI and Molitics are taking deliberate action today to gather all the necessary steps by inviting policymakers, diplomats and experts from various fields on this platform to comprehend the urgency of the situation and escalate it to the appropriate authorities. The audience was enthusiastic throughout the entire event. The event was remarkable followed by an interactive session and high tea.

blessed by the presence of H.E. Dr. Roger Gopaul, High Commissioner of Trinidad and Tobago, Mr. Tsiory Randrianarivony, Counsellor - Embassy of Madagascar, diplomats from South Korea and Navratan Aggarwal, Director of Bikanervala. The event was supported by collaborative efforts by BRO.

Uruguay is one of the more stable and transparent markets in Latin America with an investor-friendly policy environment. Several Indian companies, including Reliance and Sakti pumps, use the bonded warehouse facilities of a Uruguayan company, GrupoRas, which is keen to provide the warehouse facility and extend marketing support to other Indian companies. The Central Warehousing Corporation of India had operations in Uruguay, which were eventually wound up.

Chemicals, garments, vehicles, sound and image devices, pharmaceuticals, iron and steel, synthetic yarn, equipment, and machinery are the chief exports to Uruguay by India. India's Imports from Uruguay mainly include wool, leather, and timber. India also extends ITEC scholarships to working professionals from Uruguay every year. The Benefits of Dehydrating Food Explained by CA Rishabh Sawansukha Dehydration is a process of removing water from food. This can be done using a variety of methods, including sun drying, air drying, freeze drying, heat pump drying, solar drying, vacuum drying, spray drying and oven drying. Dehydrated food has a longer shelf life than fresh food and can be stored for months or even 5-10 years.

Benefits of Dehydration

- Increased shelf life: Dehydrated food has a much longer shelf life than fresh food. This means that you can store it for months or even years without it spoiling.
- Conservation of food: Dehydration is a great way to conserve food. This is especially important in areas where fresh food is scarce or expensive.
- Increased nutrient content: Dehydration can actually increase the nutrient content of food. This is because the water is removed, which concentrates the nutrients.
- More convenient: Dehydrated food is more convenient than fresh food. This is because it can be stored for longer periods of time and does not require refrigeration.
- More versatile: Dehydrated food is more versatile than fresh food. This is because it can be used in a variety of recipes, both sweet and savoury.

Health Benefits of Dehydrated Food

- Increased fibre content: Dehydration can increase the fibre content of food. Fibre is important for digestive health and can help to regulate blood sugar levels.
- Lower calorie content: Dehydrated food is often lower in calories than fresh food. This is because the water is removed, which concentrates the nutrients.
- More portable: Dehydrated food is more portable than fresh food. This makes it a great option for people who are on the go or who want to pack a healthy snack for lunch.
- More convenient: Dehydrated food is more convenient than fresh food. This is because it does not require refrigeration and can be stored for longer periods of time.

Conclusion

Dehydrating food can be a great way to preserve food, increase nutrient content, save money, and support local farmers and businesses. It is also a great way to make nutritious food more accessible to people in India. FRUZ India is working in Farm2Factory2Fork model to develop cooperative led ecosystem, work with USDA/Kosher/Halal certified Manufacturing and Drying Units, leading natural flavour companies for good food and retail linked processing and packaging of the same, to be sold through FRUZ partners and soon coming up with FRUZ Stores, which are enabled with latest technology and supply chain integration—leveraging power of rural agripreneurs.

FOREIGN DIRECT INVESTMENT (FDI):

A type of cross-border investment in which an investor from one country has a long-term stake in and considerable influence over a company from another country. FDI is an important component of international economic integration because it establishes solid and long-term linkages between economies.

FDI is an important component of international economic integration because it develops stable and long-term ties between economies.

● International investors can invest in India through a variety of strategies:

- Merger/Amalgamation
- Purchase of shares from the Indian Residents
- Subscription to Memorandum of Association
- Right/bonus issue

● Routes Under Which Foreign Investors Can Invest in India:

a) Automatic Route: Foreign entities or Non-Resident do not need the approval of the Government of India or RBI.

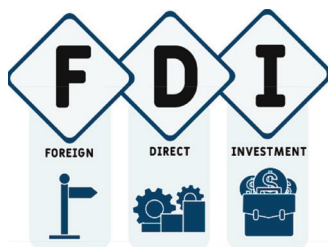

b) Government Route: Foreign entity compulsorily needs the approval of the Government of India. Should file an application through the Foreign Investment Facilitation Portal.

PERMITTED SECTORS FOR FOREIGN DIRECT INVESTMENT:

● Infrastructure Sector:

Growing pressures on government funds, as well as widespread concern about the quality of services provided by incumbent corporations, culminated in a surge of private sector FDI into infrastructure, particularly in developing nations.

In the financial year 2021, India's infrastructure industries received around 7.9 billion dollars in foreign direct investment equity. In comparison to past years, this was a significant rise. The government's "National Infrastructure Pipeline" encourages private and foreign investment in the infrastructure sector, which might explain the increase in FDI inflows.

● Aviation Sector:

The Civil Aviation sector has been divided into three sectors for the purpose of FDI policy:

- Airports
- Air Transport Services
- And Other services

Under the automatic route, 49 per cent FDI is authorized in scheduled air transport services and domestic scheduled passenger carriers. The limit for non-resident Indian (NRI) investment is 100 per cent. A foreign airline must invest through the approved method, and the 49 per cent maximum applies to both FII and FDI.

● Banking Sector:

Under the "automatic method," which includes initial public offerings (IPOs), private placements, ADR/GDRs, and acquisition of shares from existing owners, foreign direct investment (FDI) up to 49 per cent is permissible in Indian private sector banks.

a) The maximum foreign investment in an insurance firm is set at 26% under the Insurance Act.

b) In nationalized banks, FDI and portfolio investment are subject to total statutory restrictions of 20%.

c) Such investments in the State Bank of India and its affiliated banks would be subject to a 20% cap.

FDI IN INDIA IS PROHIBITED IN THE FOLLOWING SECTORS:

- Chit funds • Lottery business
- Real estate business
- Manufacturing of cigars, cigarettes, tobacco, or tobacco substitutes
- Gambling and betting as well as casinos
- Construction of Farmhouses
- Trading in transferable Development Rights

GLOBAL TRIALS:

Navigating the Tough Terrain of Diplomatic Life Abroad

Diplomatic postings to foreign regions present a remarkable opportunity for ambassadors and other diplomats to showcase their country's interests on a global platform while resolving pressing issues. Nonetheless, the complexities and intricacies of this professional path can often be arduous. In light of this, the challenges confronted by diplomats when dispatched overseas merit deeper consideration. The following are some of the most significant challenges encountered by diplomats in foreign postings.

Cultural Adjustment

Diplomats are often posted to countries with different cultures, languages, and customs. This can make it challenging to adapt to the new environment and interact with locals in a culturally appropriate manner. Diplomats must be able to navigate these differences to effectively carry out their work and build relationships with local stakeholders.

Separation from Family and Support Systems

Diplomats may be posted overseas for long periods, which can lead to feelings of isolation and loneliness. This is particularly true when families cannot accompany diplomats on their postings. Diplomats must be able to maintain their physical and mental well-being while being away from their support systems.

Security Concerns

Diplomats may face security risks in some countries due to political instability, terrorism, or other threats. This can make it challenging to carry out their work and maintain their safety. Diplomats must be able to navigate these security risks and take appropriate measures to ensure their safety.

Work-Life Balance

Diplomats may work long hours and be on call 24/7, which can make it challenging to maintain a healthy work-life balance. This can lead to stress and burnout. Diplomats must be able to manage their time effectively and prioritize self-care to maintain their well-being.

Health Concerns

Diplomats may face health risks in some countries due to infectious diseases, poor air quality, or other environmental hazards. This can affect their physical and mental well-being. Diplomats must be able to manage their health and take appropriate precautions to stay healthy.

Bureaucratic Challenges

Diplomats may face bureaucratic challenges such as navigating complex visa processes, dealing with customs regulations, or managing logistics for large events. Diplomats must be able to navigate these challenges effectively to carry out their work.

Language Barriers

Diplomats may be required to learn a new language to effectively communicate with locals, which can be challenging and time-consuming. Diplomats must be able to adapt to these language barriers and effectively communicate in a culturally appropriate manner. Being a diplomat is extremely glamorous on the outside but not without its challenges. Diplomats must be able to navigate cultural, logistical, and security challenges to effectively carry out their work and represent their country on the global stage. Diplomats need to receive adequate support and resources to help them manage these challenges and carry out their work effectively. The challenges faced by diplomats, when posted overseas, can have a significant impact on their mental health. Here are some of the mental health issues that can result from these challenges:

Anxiety and Depression

The stressors of being in a new and unfamiliar environment, as well as the pressure to perform their duties effectively, can lead to feelings of anxiety and depression among diplomats. The separation from family and support systems can also contribute to these mental health issues.

Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder (PTSD)

Diplomats may face security risks in some countries, which can lead to traumatic experiences that can trigger symptoms of PTSD. These symptoms may include flashbacks, nightmares, and intense anxiety or fear.

Burnout

The demanding work schedule and high expectations placed on diplomats can lead to burnout, which is a state of emotional, mental, and physical exhaustion caused by prolonged stress. This can result in feelings of detachment, decreased productivity, and emotional exhaustion.

Substance Abuse

Diplomats who are struggling with mental health issues may turn to substance abuse such as alcohol, tobacco, prescription medication, and or illegal drugs such as marijuana, cocaine, etc. as a way to cope. Substance abuse can further exacerbate mental health issues and have long-term negative consequences.

Relationship Issues

The challenges of being in a new and unfamiliar environment, as well as the demands of the job, can put a strain on relationships. This can lead to relationship issues, such as conflicts with family members or difficulties maintaining long-distance relationships. Overall, the mental health issues resulting from the challenges faced by diplomats when posted overseas can be significant. Diplomats need to receive adequate support and resources to manage their mental health and well-being while carrying out their important work. This support can come in the form of mental health counseling, access to mental health resources, and work-life balance policies that prioritize self-care.

Diplomats can take several steps to address the mental health challenges they may face when posted overseas. Here are some strategies that can be helpful:

Build a Support Network

Diplomats can build a support network of colleagues, friends, and family members who can offer emotional support and encouragement. This can be particularly important when family members are not able to accompany the diplomat on their postings.

Maintain Physical Health

Diplomats should prioritize their physical health by getting regular exercise, eating a healthy diet, and getting enough sleep. These habits can help to reduce stress and promote overall well-being.

Practice Self-Care

Diplomats should practice self-care by engaging in activities that promote relaxation and well-being. This can include hobbies, meditation, or other forms of stress relief.

Stay Connected with Loved Ones

Diplomats should stay connected with their loved ones, even if they are not able to be physically present. This can include regular communication through phone calls, video chats, or other forms of digital communication.

Develop Coping Strategies

Diplomats can develop coping strategies to manage stress and anxiety when faced with challenging situations. This can include mindfulness practices, breathing exercises, or other techniques to manage emotions and maintain resilience.

Advocate for Mental Health Support

Diplomats can advocate for mental health support and resources within their organization. This can include advocating for access to mental health services, support groups, or other resources that can help to address mental health challenges. As diplomats embark on overseas assignments, they are likely to encounter mental health challenges that require prompt and deliberate attention. To mitigate these issues, diplomats must adopt proactive measures to prioritize their mental health and well-being. This includes seeking professional assistance, building a robust support system, maintaining physical fitness, practicing self-care, staying connected with family and friends, devising coping strategies, and advocating for mental health services. By undertaking these steps, diplomats can cultivate resilience and maintain their mental health amidst the demanding and stressful nature of diplomatic work abroad.

*Embassy of Uruguay
New Delhi*

New Delhi, 24th May 2023

Message from Ambassador of Uruguay

Uruguay amazed the world when President Luis Lacalle Pou attended the inauguration of Brazilian President Lula with two former Presidents, Julio Maria Sanguinetti, from the Colorado Party and Pepe Mujica from the Frente Amplio. The whole political spectrum of the country was represented. This is what talks about the civic education of this country that this year celebrates the 75 anniversary since the establishment of diplomatic relations with India, the most populated democracy and one of the longest, stable and consolidated democracies in the world.

Uruguay is trying hard to strengthen the ties and in that direction is that the Vice Minister of Foreign Affairs, Dr. Nicolas Albertoni visited New Delhi at the beginning of March to participate in the 5th Political Consultation Mechanism between India and Uruguay and also to proceed to the inauguration of the Indo Uruguayan Chamber of Commerce, a much-needed instrument to associate more profoundly the private sectors of both countries.

Still much more needs to be done in making these ties more meaningful. The approximation of India to Latin America has not gone in the direction of Uruguay. Still the reciprocity of opening an Embassy in Montevideo is waiting for a political decision. There are opportunities to be balanced. Tata consulting has celebrated already 20 years of productive and effective work in my country. It was the first Latin American country where it opened office, the same stands as Uruguay being the first Latin American country to establish diplomatic relations with India. There is a lot of potential to explore and distance is no excuse to advance in the desired direction.

My friend the President of the Global Trade and Technology Council, GTTCI, Gaurav Gupta has counted on me during many occasions around India, being in Chennai, Nainital, Uttar Pradesh and other locations. At the beginning of April, we launched the India Uruguay Forum that will demonstrate Uruguay's commitment to transparency and as an investor friendly destination. I sincerely hope more interests wake to our offer that India should consider Uruguay as a hub for expanding business in South America.

I would like to take this opportunity to commend the GTTCI for its continued commitment to promoting global trade and technology. I surely think that the Council's efforts will help to create a more prosperous and better-connected world.

I look forward in working together in the months and years ahead.
